

EngenderHealth Internship Program Fund

Are you ever an intern, or do you have a son or daughter who sought an internship with hope of learning new skills and opening doors to a career path?

EngenderHealth
for a better life

EngenderHealth welcomes interns to participate in our work as a way to cultivate the next generation of sexual and reproductive health and rights (SRHR) professionals, while building our capacity to deliver on a growing portfolio of exciting programs around the world.

---

In keeping with our principles, EngenderHealth is committed to providing paid internships to successful candidates recognizing the tremendous value they contribute to our programs and operations, while ensuring we provide opportunity to a diverse pool of applicants. To achieve this and to provide opportunities to more young people, we are launching the EngenderHealth Internship Program Fund with a goal to raise and maintain $75,000 annually to support multiple paid internship opportunities across the organization.

Fall 2020 Digital Communications Intern:

Interning at EngenderHealth proved to be a formative experience, solidifying my desire to pursue a career in global health during my gap year. The work I produced as a member of the communications team was valued, and I was surrounded by inspiring mentors who took the time to offer meaningful advice and feedback.

Ana Shimeall, 2020 Intern.

How You Can Help

---

You can help grow the next generation of SRHR professionals by sponsoring EngenderHealth's internship program, or an individual intern at a level that is right for you. Your sponsorship will create much-needed learning opportunities for students from various fields who want exposure to global health, SRHR, and the international sector, and yield a variety of recognition benefits.
